

Great Ormond Street Hospital wins national award for work with IndiCater

Robert Wilkins, Operational Catering Manager for Great Ormond Street, the UK's leading children's hospital, has won the Project Manager of the Year 2009 award presented by HefmA (Health Estates & Facilities Management Association) at their national awards ceremony held in London.

In a toughly fought competition, the award was presented to Robert for demonstrating the most effective project management competence for his work with IndiCater on the computerisation of the catering operations. This was a complex and demanding project that had to meet the diverse requirements of the hospital. Working hand in hand with the team at IndiCater, Robert brought in the project on time, on budget and now has a system in place which exceeds expectations.

Said Robert Wilkins "The award is an enormous recognition for what has been achieved at Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children NHS Trust. I am both personally exhilarated and proud to be named Project Manager of the Year 2009 by HefmA. More importantly it recognises the dedication of both the Great Ormond Street project team and IndiCater team in demonstrating a truly determined 'can do' attitude. IndiCaters continuous R&D, industry knowledge and overall attitude has significantly contributed to this award".

Great Ormond Street Hospital now use IndiCaters IT system to provide online access to faster and more accurate catering information, helping to improve efficiency and costs. Amongst other tools, the hospital is benefiting from use of IndiCaters online stock system, recipe management system, e-ordering; cash and credit sale management, communications and staffing processes.

IndiCater and the team at Great Ormond Street are now looking at the further integration of processes including bedside meal ordering that will generate food production schedules/orders, hand held stock taking, and automated on line orders from Epos.
